"The men who made this great enterprise a possibility, who paved the way for to-day's event were the Pioneers, who left the luxuries and pleasures of the East and braved danger in a thousand forms to come here and make these mountains habitable."

—General U. S. Grant, at the completion of the Northern Pacific Railroad at Gold Creek, Deer Lodge County, September 8th, 1883.

PREFACE

This volume is the result of an effort to form a Society of Pioneers of Montana, gathering within its membership all those who came as early as 1864. Owing to the size of the State and their widely dispersed settlement the attempt has not been altogether a success. Possibly the indifference of some has operated to add to the incompleteness of the book which claims to be little more than a Register of that Society with the addition of some names of those early pioneers who are dead or who left the territory, and who are indebted to the thoughtfulness of partial friends for a place in this Domesday Book of Adventurers. It has been the desire of those who have prepared it to make it a complete catalogue of all those pioneers who would signify their desire to have a place with their countrymen by joining the society, and a vast volume of correspondence has been necessary to gather the names herein contained. Of the twelve thousand adventurers in 1863 and the thirty thousand in 1864 who visited this besieged and isolated territory, a large proportion made Montana a way station on their journey to other lands, but a goodly number abided in its borders and have aided in its wonderful development and progress. Those who did remain saw at an early day that the diversities of its immigration, the variety of their avocations, their spirit of enterprise and adventure, the crowning and stern tragedy which evolved social order, and the strange and thrilling epoch of its early life would make its history one of absorbing interest. They incorporated at the earliest opportunity the Historical Society of Montana, and charged it with the onerous duty of gathering from oral tradition and other sources the meager tale of action along the springs of the Missouri, the Columbia, and the Yellowstone, during the first two-thirds of the Nineteenth Century. That society thinking that an open door to its portals might enervate it by admitting everyone to its management, who, making it a plaything for a day would then lose interest in its purposes, adopted an organization of exclusiveness and maintained it for a quarter of a century with no inconsiderable success. The Pioneers of the State were, however, of the opinion that there was room for another society more popularly organized and hence, in 1884, pursuant to a call for that purpose, they brought forth "The Society of Montana Pioneers." It was not designed in any degree to rival the Historical Society. Some circumstances have conspired to give adventitious aid to the Pioneers and the Society is made to feel an increasing interest in its purposes. It is designed to issue another edition of this volume when a more complete membership shall have been procured. To this end they invoke an intenser interest in its organization from those who may join to the end that in its membership may be included all who are eligible thereto. It is not improbable that a later date will be fixed than 1864 as the period of residence required for eligibility to membership, and the Society has it in contemplation to issue a volume containing a series of papers on early life in Montana, written by its members, each of whom from his own standpoint and in his own way will tell the activities which he beheld and the emotions which swayed him and his fellow pioneers, as the commonwealth gradually emerged from Chaos to Cosmos, so far as perfect order has yet been attained. If this volume is unpretentious, it is not because the Pioneers are not proud of what in their day and generation has been accomplished, and they fondly expect in another form to commend to the State the story of sacrifice and struggle out of which so noble a commonwealth has grown. The early settlers of Montana had long had it in contemplation to form a Society of Pioneers, but the wide unoccupied spaces which separated, long delayed the consummation of their cherished purpose. Mr. John Russell Wilson, one of the earliest adventurers in this portion of Idaho, long connected with the Press of the Territory, finally gave form and unity to this purpose by promulgating and publishing the following call:—

Pioneers’ Association

[It having been suggested and urged by a large number of the Pioneers of Montana that the undersigned issue a call for the assembly of the Pioneers of Montana for the purpose of organizing a Pioneers’ Association or Society, the task is heartily undertaken under the belief that it will bring forth good fruit. I have been unable, thus far, to see or hear from many of the Pioneers, and in appending their names to the call I do it from the fact that I am personally acquainted with nearly all of them, and by virtue of acquaintance take the liberty of using their names. To Col. W. F. Sanders, of Helena, Hon. Washington Stapleton, of Butte, and Hon. Joe A. Browne, of Darling, I am under obligations for timely suggestions. To Captain Mills, of the Deer Lodge, New North West, I am indebted for timely hints. The brethren of the Territorial Press will contribute toward the success of organizing a Pioneers’ Association by giving the following call as much publicity as in their judgment may seem most meet and proper.—

John Russell Wilson]

Dillon, Montana, July 26th, 1884.

Call for a Pioneers’ Association

All pioneer citizens of Montana who were residents within its limits at the date of the creation of the Territory—May 26th, 1864—are cordially invited to attend a meeting to be held at the Court House, in the city of Helena, the capital of the Territory, on Wednesday, September 10th, 1884, at 10 o’clock A. M. (the day being during Fair week), for the purpose of organizing a Pioneers’ Association or Society of Pioneers. This society will not be organized in any hostility to or as a rival of the Historical Society, but in its scope and purpose it will radically differ from that corporation. While it is probable that membership will be permitted to those reaching Montana at a more recent date than the 26th of May, 1864, it has been thought best to confine the present call to those who were here at the time Montana was created a Territory by Act of Congress.

The time indicated will be fitting for the organization of an association. The events of our early or pioneer history are rapidly fading from the memory of Montanians. The actors themselves—scattered to nearly every part of the habitable earth—are as rapidly passing away. Change has already been ineffaceably impressed upon all of the domain west of the Missouri River. Nowhere is that change more marked than within the limits of our own peerless Montana. The isolation of the past has been broken by the welcome invasion of the iron horse forever. The tragic chapters of our pioneer history have all been written and recorded. We have aided in planting a civilization and a common-wealth on the headwaters of the mighty Missouri and on the babbling brooks and streams that feed the Columbia of the West. The merciless Indian savage has been subdued and subjected to the rules and regulations of our own civilization. The epoch of highway robberies has passed away. No weary weeks are required to reach our once isolated Montana, for railway trains have superseded the rickety coaches and snail-like ox-team expressers. We are no longer dependent on Mormon supplies, but can now reach to the far West and distant East for all our needs.

The strange and exceptional environment which made Pioneers responsible for order and good government in the absence of law, and tested the courage, prudence, integrity, fortitude, intelligence and inventive genius of old-time Montanians has forever passed away. We are entering upon an era which is to be the second chapter of our history. Pioneers will be pardoned by the pilgrim or newcomer for clinging with a vivid, refreshed, and affectionate memory to the changeless Pioneer Past, and for recalling with feelings akin to pride the days that are no more. The panorama of human progress, from semi-barbarous life to our present culture, has moved before our eyes and its responsible actors have achieved more than we appreciate, and for which they will never be properly credited.

The coming meeting will be the occasion for retrospection and congratulation. It will add new but light responsibilities to the Pioneers; and most assuredly it will be productive of gratifying results. Once organize the Society and yearly thereafter it will be a proud day in the memory of each Pioneer when he recalls the event of its organization. Pioneers included in this call and those who desire to sign the same and attend the meeting hereby called are respectfully requested to send their names to Mr. Charles Rumley, at Helena.

In addition it has been suggested that Pioneers prepare papers relating their early experiences to be read at the forthcoming meeting.

Pursuant to this notice a goodly number of the early residents of the country met during what elsewhere is called "The Harvest Festival" and organized this Society. While the attendance upon its meeting has not been numerous they have possessed an abiding interest as the actors in the stirring scenes of our early days, as they have been recounted by those competent to speak from personal observation. The Pioneer of Montana needs no eulogy nor words of praise. Si monumentum requiris, circumspice.

CONSTITUTION

September 11th, 1884

ARTICLE I.

This Society shall be known as the Society of Montana Pioneers.

ARTICLE II.

All persons who were residents within the Territory on or before May 26th, 1864, or who had then started from their former homes therefor, shall be entitled to become members of the Society, upon preferring a written request therefor, and signing the Constitution and By-Laws of the Society. (Repealed August 26th, 1886.)

ARTICLE III.

The officers of the Society shall consist of a President, one Vice-President in each county of the Territory, a Corresponding Secretary, a Recording Secretary, and a Treasurer.

ARTICLE IV.

The President, Treasurer, and Corresponding Secretary shall be the Executive Committee, whose duty it shall be to have charge of the Society, to prepare for publication such material as in their judgment is useful, and to make arrangements for the annual meetings of the Society.

ARTICLE V.

The annual meeting of the Society shall be held at such time and place as in the judgment of the Executive Committee will secure the largest attendance and best accommodate the greater number of the members, two weeks published notice thereof being given.

ARTICLE VI.

The Officers of the Society shall severally perform the duties usually appertaining to their respective offices. Each President and Vice-President, in addition thereto, shall at the close of his term of service, (xxxii) present a paper appertaining to the early history of the settlements of Montana, and each member of the Society shall furnish the Recording Secretary with his name and age, residence, date and place of birth, the date of his arrival in the Territory, from what place he came to the Territory and when he started therefrom.

ARTICLE VII.

The Executive Committee, whenever in their judgment it is desired, may notify the members of any amount of money which may be required, and receive contributions therefor, to be paid to the Treasurer.

ARTICLE VIII.

This Constitution may be amended at any Annual Meeting of the Society, upon one day's notice, by a vote of a majority of the members thereof present.

AMENDMENTS

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 1. Persons resident in Montana on or before December 31st, A.D.
1864, and none others shall be eligible to become members of the Society of Montana Pioneers, and any motion to suspend, amend or repeal this Article shall forever be out of order and shall be so declared by the officer presiding for the time being, whether the point of order is made by a member or not.

Sec. 2. Persons desiring to become members of the Society shall prefer a request thereof in writing, containing a statement of their claim thereto, which shall be referred to the Committee on Credentials, who shall report thereon to the Executive Committee, and if such report be in favor of the applicant and the Executive Committee approve of the same, such applicant by signing the Constitution shall become a member of the Society.

AUGUST 26th, 1886.
MONTANA

The area of territory embraced within the State of Montana came into the possession of the United States through two channels; that part lying east of the Rocky Mountains was a part of the province of Louisiana purchased by President Jefferson of Napoleon in 1803 for the sum of $11,250,000, and the assumption by the United States of the French Spoliation claims thought to amount to $3,750,000. That part lying west of the Rocky Mountains formed a portion of the Oregon country claimed by the United States as having been acquired by discovery in 1792, exploration in 1805, Astoria settlement, 1811, and the Florida Treaty, 1819.

Louisiana was first visited by European voyagers in 1541, when Fernando De Soto discovered the Mississippi River and penetrated the wilds to the west. The next year he returned to the eastward and started to sail down the Father of Waters, but on June 5th he died and was buried beneath its waves. In 1673 Father Marquette, from Canada, with his followers, sailed down the Mississippi to its mouth, but established no settlements.

In 1682 the first move toward taking possession of the country occurred, when Robert Cavelier La Salle, a French explorer, 1643-87, on February 6th, had embarked on the Mississippi, at the mouth of the river Illinois, sailed down the same and on April 9th, reached its mouth and raised a column, bearing the Arms of France, and took possession of the Valley of the Mississippi from the Alleghanies to the Rocky Mountains in the name of Louis XIV., of France, and gave it the name of Louisiana. Louisiana remained a French possession for eighty years until, on the third day of November, 1762, Louis XV., of France, ceded to Charles III., of Spain, Louisiana in the following terms:—

"His Most Christian Majesty cedes in entire possession, purely and simply, without exception, to his Catholic Majesty and his successors in perpetuity, all the country known under the name of Louisiana."

This treaty was kept a secret between the contracting powers for many years. Three months later, on February 10th, 1763, by the Treaty of Paris, France and Spain on the one part, with Great Britain on the other, established the boundary between the possessions of Great Britain... and Louisiana as a “line drawn along the middle of the river Mississippi, from its source to the river Iberville.”

By Article IV. of a treaty between the United States of America and the King of Spain, entered into October 27th, 1795, it was provided:—

“It is likewise agreed that the western boundary which separates them from the Spanish colony of Louisiana, is in the middle of the channel or bed of the river Mississippi, from the northern boundary of the said states to the completion of the thirty-first degree of latitude north of the equator. . . .”

By the treaty of San Ildefonso, October 1st, 1800, His Catholic Majesty promises and engages on his part to retrocede to the French Republic . . . The colony or province of Louisiana with the same extent it now has in the hands of Spain, and that it had when France possessed it, and such as it should be after the treaty subsequently entered into between Spain and other states.

France did not take possession of the province of Louisiana until about the 23d of November, 1803, at New Orleans, when the Spanish troops were withdrawn, the key of the city surrendered by the Spanish Governor and the Spanish colors lowered as the emblem of France was raised over the city, and the sovereignty of France recognized over the said province.

The following are the terms of the most important articles of the treaty between the United States of America and the French Republic, signed at Paris, April 30th, 1803:—

The President of the United States of America, and the First Consul of the French Republic, in the name of the French people, desiring to remove all source of misunderstanding relative to the objects of discussion mentioned in the second and fifth articles of the Convention of the 8th Vendémiaire an. 9 (30th September, 1800) relative to the rights claimed by the United States, in virtue of the treaty concluded at Madrid, the 27th of October, 1795, between his Catholic Majesty and the said United States, and willing to strengthen the union and friendship . . . between the two nations, have respectively named their plenipotentiaries to wit, . . . Robert R. Livingston and James Monroe, and Citizen Francis Barbe Marbois.

Art. I.—Whereas by the Article, the third of the treaty, concluded at St. Ildefonso, the 6th Vendémiaire, an. 9 (1st of October, 1800) between the First Consul of the French Republic and his Catholic Majesty, it was agreed as follows: “His Catholic Majesty promises and engages on his part, to retrocede to the French Republic, six months after the full and entire execution of the conditions and stipulations herein relative to his royal highness the Duke of Parma, the colony or province of Louisiana, with the same extent that it now has in the hands of Spain, and that it had when France possessed it; and such as it should be after the treaties subsequently entered into between Spain and other states.”

And whereas, in pursuance of the treaty and particularly of the third article, the French Republic has an incontestable title to the domain and to the possession of the said territory. The First Consul of the French Republic desiring to give to the United States a strong proof of his friendship, doth hereby cede to the United States, in the name of the French Republic forever and in full sovereignty, the said territory with all its rights and appurtenances, as fully and in the same manner as they have been acquired by the French Republic in virtue of the above mentioned treaty, concluded with his Catholic Majesty.
ART. II.—Included in the cession all adjacent islands belonging to Louisiana, all public lots and squares, vacant lands, and public buildings, fortifications, barracks, and other edifices not private property, archives, papers and documents, relative to the domain and sovereignty of Louisiana, and its dependencies, to be left in the possession of the commissaries of the United States.

ART. III.—The inhabitants of the ceded territory shall be incorporated into the Union of the United States, and admitted as soon as possible, according to the principles of the Federal Constitution, to the enjoyment of all the rights, advantages, and immunities of citizens of the United States.

ART. IV.—Provided that a commissary of the government of France should be sent to Louisiana, as well to receive from the officers of his Catholic Majesty the said country and its dependencies, in the name of the French Republic, if it has not been already done, as to transmit it in the name of the French Republic to the commissary or agent of the United States.

ART. V.—Immediately after the ratification of this treaty by both parties the commissary of the French Republic shall remit all military posts of the ceded territory to the commissary or commissaries of the United States to take possession.

ART. VI.—The United States promise to execute all treaties entered into between Spain and the tribes and nations of Indians.

On October 31st, 1803, Congress passed an Act to enable the President of the United States to take possession of the territories ceded by France to the United States, by the treaty concluded at Paris, on the thirtieth day of April last; and for the temporary government thereof, which provided that,—

"The President may for that purpose, and in order to maintain in the said territories the authority of the United States, employ any part of the army and navy of the United States . . . which he may deem necessary. . . . That until the expiration of the present session of Congress, unless provision for the temporary government of the said territories be sooner made by Congress, all the military, civil, and judicial powers, exercised by the officers of the existing government of the same, shall be vested in such person and persons, and shall be exercised in such manner, as the President of the United States shall direct for maintaining and protecting the inhabitants of Louisiana in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property, and religion."

It was not, as is seen above, until after the above treaty had been entered into, that France took possession of the province of Louisiana under the treaty of San Ildefonso, and by Article IV. of her treaty of cession to the United States, above quoted, she had provided that her commissary who should go to Louisiana and transmit the province to the commissary of the United States, should receive the same from Spain, "if it has not been already done."

Within a month after she received said province from Spain, or on the 20th of December, 1803, the flag of France was lowered and the Stars and Stripes raised over New Orleans, and the American Army took possession of the province and the French prefect in retiring announced:—

"In conformity with the treaty, I put the United States in possession of Louisiana and its dependencies. The citizens and inhabitants who wish to remain here and obey the laws are from this moment exonerated from the oath of fidelity to the French Republic."
The American Governor William C. C. Claiborne issued a proclamation declaring that the government previously exercised over the province by Spain and by France had ceased and that of the United States was established over the same. At the same time he said—

"The cession secures to you and your descendants the inheritance of liberty, perpetual laws, and magistrates whom you will elect yourselves."

When in 1803 the expedition of Lewis and Clarke reached the Mississippi, France had not yet received the surrender from Spain of the "Village" of St. Louis and the Spanish Commandant successfully objected to the entry on the soil yet supposed by him to be under the dominion of Spain of a military expedition of the United States, but during the winter the complications were straightened out and in the spring of 1804 they started on their voyage of discovery and exploration of the newly purchased domain.

On March 26th, 1804, Congress passed an Act erecting Louisiana into two territories, and providing for the temporary government thereof, which provided—

"That all that portion of country ceded by France to the United States, under the name of Louisiana, which lies south of the Mississippi Territory, and of an east and west line, to commence on the Mississippi River, at the thirty-third degree of north latitude, and to extend west to the western boundary of the said cession, shall constitute a territory of the United States, under the name of the Territory of Orleans. . . ."

SEC. 12.—The residue of the province of Louisiana, ceded to the United States, shall be called the District of Louisiana, the government whereof shall be organized and administered as follows: The executive power now vested in the governor of the Indiana Territory* shall extend to and be exercised in the said District of Louisiana. . . . The judges of the Indiana Territory, or any two of them, shall hold annually two courts within the said district. . . .

SEC. 16.—The Act passed on the thirty-first day of October, one thousand eight hundred and three . . . shall continue in force until the first day of October next . . . on which said first day of October, this Act shall commence and have full force, and shall continue in force for and during the term of one year, and to the end of the next session of Congress which may happen thereafter.

March 3d, 1805, Congress enacted:—

"That all that part of the country ceded by France to the United States, under the general name of Louisiana, which by an Act of the last session of Congress, was erected into a separate district, to be called the District of Louisiana, shall henceforth be known and designated by the name and title of the Territory of Louisiana.

SEC. 10.—That so much of an Act, entitled 'An Act erecting Louisiana into two territories, and providing for the temporary government thereof,' as is repugnant to this Act, shall, from and after the fourth day of July next, be repealed, on which said fourth day of July, this Act shall commence and have full force."

On June 4th, 1812, an Act providing for the government of the Territory of Missouri became a law, providing—

"That the territory heretofore called Louisiana shall hereafter be called Missouri."

*W. H. Harrison, afterwards President of the United States, was Governor of Indiana Territory, 1800-11.
As showing the knowledge and population of the country at the time, the following provisions of the law are interesting and instructive:

The Council shall be composed as follows: As soon as representatives shall be elected they shall be convened by the Governor, as hereafter prescribed, and when met, shall nominate eighteen persons, residents in the said territory one year preceding their nomination, holding no office of profit under the territory or the United States, the office of the justice of the peace excepted, and each possessing in his own right two hundred acres of land therein, and return the names to the President of the United States, nine of whom the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint and commission for the residue of the term; and every five years like nominations shall be made and returned to the President and appointments made. House of Representatives to be elected every two years, one representative for every five hundred free white male inhabitants and progressively increase until the representatives shall amount to twenty-five. Governor to call elections and to lay out counties. Representatives elected shall be convened by the Governor in the town of St. Louis, on the first Monday in December next. Legislature to convene annually at St. Louis on the first Monday in December. The laws of the territory of Louisiana continued in force. The Act was to take effect December 1st, 1812.

The organization of the state of Missouri, March 6th, 1820. Resolution of Congress, March 2d, 1821, and Proclamation of the President, August 10th, 1821, left the western portion of the territory of Missouri without any organized government. Treaty of Ghent, between his Britannic Majesty and the United States of America, December 24th, 1814, ratified February 17th, 1815, provided that—"All territory, places and possessions whatsoever, taken by either party from the other, during the war, or which may be taken after the signing of this treaty, excepting only the islands hereinafter mentioned, shall be restored without delay."

Under the terms of this treaty Great Britain relinquished all claim to the Astoria settlements near the mouth of the Columbia River, known as Fort George. By treaty between the United States of America and his Catholic Majesty signed at Washington, February 22d, 1819, and ratified, October 24th, 1820, by Spain and by the United States, February 19th, 1821, it was agreed:

"To settle and determine all differences and pretensions by a treaty which shall designate, with precision, the limits of their respective bordering territories in North America."

It was provided as follows in Art. III.—The boundary line between the two countries west of the Mississippi, shall begin on the Gulph of Mexico, at the mouth of the river Sabine, in the sea, continuing north along the western bank of that river to the 32d degree of latitude; thence by a line due north, to the degree of latitude where it strikes the Rio Roxo of Nachitoches, or Red River; then following the course of the Rio Roxo westward to the degree of longitude 100 west from London and 23 from Washington; then, crossing the said Red River, and running thence, by a line due north to the river Arkansas; thence following the course of the southern bank of the Arkansas, to its source, in latitude 42 north; and thence by that parallel of latitude to the South Sea. But if the source of the Arkansas River shall be found to fall north or south of latitude 42, then the line shall run from the said source due south or north, as the case may be, till it meets the said parallel of latitude 42, and thence along the said parallel to the South Sea. (Pacific Ocean.)

A treaty known as the Ashburton Treaty, signed at Washington, August 9th, 1842, by Daniel Webster, Secretary of State, and Right Honorable Lord Ashburton, to settle and define the boundaries between the territories of the United States and the possessions of her Britanic Majesty in North America, and ratified at London, August 22d, 1842, provided as follows in—

Art. II.—It is moreover agreed that from the place where the joint commission terminated their labors, under the sixth article of the treaty of Ghent, to wit: At a point in the Neebish channel, near Muddy Lake, the line shall run into and along the ship channel between St. Joseph and St. Tammany Islands, to the division of the channel at or near the head of St. Joseph's Island; thence turning eastwardly and northwardly around the lower end of St. George's or Sugar Island, and following the middle of the channel which divides St. George's from St. Joseph's Island; thence up the East Neebish channel, nearest to St. George's Island, through the middle of Lake George; thence west of Jonas Island into St. Mary's River to a point in the middle of that river about one mile above St. George's or Sugar Island, so as to appropriate and assign the said island to the United States; thence, adopting line traced on the map by the commissioners, through the river St. Mary and Lake Superior to a point north of Ile Royale, in said lake, one hundred yards to the north and east of Ile Chapeau, which last mentioned island lies near the northeastern point of Ile Royale, where the line marked by the commissioners terminates; and from the last mentioned point, southwesterly, through the middle of the sound between Ile Royale and the northwestern mainland to the mouth of Pigeon River, and up the said river to and through the North and South Fowl Lakes to the lakes of the height of land between Lake Superior and the Lake of the Woods; thence along the water communication to Lake Saisaginaga, and through that lake; thence to and through Cypress Lake, Lac du Bois Blanc, Lac la Croix, Little Vermilion Lake, and Lake Namecan, and through the several smaller lakes, straits or streams, connecting the lakes here mentioned, to that point in Lac la Pluie or Rainy Lake, at the Chaudiere Falls, from which the commissioners traced the line to the most northwestern point of the Lake of the Woods; thence along the said line to the said most northwestern point, being in latitude 49° 23' 55" north, and in longitude 95° 14' 38" west from the observatory at Greenwich; thence, according to the existing treaties, due south to its intersection with the forty-ninth parallel of north latitude, and along that parallel to the Rocky Mountains.

On May 30th, 1854, Congress passed the Kansas-Nebraska Bill, creating the territories of Nebraska and Kansas in the following terms providing,—

"That all that part of the territory of the United States included within the following limits, . . . to wit, beginning at a point in the Missouri River, where the fortieth parallel of north latitude crosses the same; thence west on said parallel to the east boundary of the Territory of Utah, on the summit of the Rocky Mountains; thence on said summit northward to the fortieth parallel of north latitude; thence east on said parallel to the western boundary of the Territory of Minnesota; thence southward on said boundary to the Missouri River; thence down the main channel of said river to the place of beginning, be, and the same is hereby, created into a temporary government by the name of the Territory of Nebraska; and when admitted as a state or states, the said territory, or any portion of the same, shall be received into the Union with or without slavery, as their constitution may prescribe at the time of their admission. . . ."

Governors of Nebraska Territory, 1854-61: Francis Burt, 1854; T. B. Cuming (acting), 1854-5; Mark W. Izard, 1855-8; Wm. A. Richardson, 1858; J. S. Morton (acting), 1858-9; Samuel W. Black, 1859-61; Alvin Saunders, 1861-.

On March 2d, 1861, Congress created the Territory of Dakota, defining its boundaries as follows:

“That all that part of the territory of the United States included within the following limits, namely; commencing at a point in the main channel of the Red River of the North, where the forty-ninth degree of north latitude crosses the same; thence up the main channel of the same, and along the boundary of the state of Minnesota to Big Stone Lake; thence along the boundary line of the said state of Minnesota to the Iowa line; thence along the boundary line of the state of Iowa to the point of intersection between the Big Sioux and Missouri Rivers; thence up the Missouri River and along the boundary line of the Territory of Nebraska, to the mouth of the Niobrara or Running Water River; thence following up the same, in the middle of the main channel thereof, to the mouth of the Keha Paha or Turtle Hill River; thence up said river to the forty-third parallel of north latitude; thence due west to the present boundary of the Territory of Washington; thence along the boundary line of Washington Territory, to the forty-ninth degree of north latitude; thence east along said forty-ninth degree of north latitude to the place of beginning, be, and the same is hereby, organized into a temporary government, by the name of the Territory of Dakota.”

March 3d, 1863, Congress passed an Act to provide a temporary government for the Territory of Idaho as follows:

“That all that part of the territory of the United States included within the following limits, to wit: beginning at a point in the middle of the channel of the Snake River, where the northern boundary of Oregon intersects the same; then follow down said channel of Snake River to a point opposite the mouth of the Kooskooksin, or Clearwater River; thence due north to the forty-ninth parallel of latitude; thence east along said parallel to the twenty-seventh degree of longitude west of Washington; thence south along said degree of longitude to the northern boundary of Colorado Territory; thence west along said boundary to the thirty-third degree of longitude west of Washington; thence north along said degree to the forty-second parallel of latitude; thence west along said parallel to the eastern boundary of the state of Oregon; thence north along said boundary to the place of beginning, and the same is hereby created into a temporary government, by the name of the Territory of Idaho.”

We now take up acquisition and territorial career of that part of Montana, west of the Rocky Mountains.

By the Treaty of 1819 between the United States and Spain the latter Kingdom relinquished all claim to the country, north of the forty-second parallel of latitude to the South Sea. (Pacific Ocean.)

The country from the Pacific coast to Louisiana had been claimed by the United States by virtue of the discovery, by Captain Gray of the Ship Columbia, of the Columbia River in April, 1792, and his entrance up the same in May of that year, by virtue of the exploration of the country by the Lewis and Clarke expedition in 1805, by virtue of the Astoria settlement in 1811, and by virtue of the above mentioned Treaty of 1819.

By the treaty of Washington, between the United States of America and Her Majesty, the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, concluded at Washington, June 15th, ratifications exchanged at London, July 17th, and proclaimed, August 5th, 1846, and signed by James Buchanan, for the United States, and Richard Packenham, for Great Britain. It was provided in Article I. as follows as to our northern boundary:

"From the point on the forty-ninth parallel of north latitude, where the boundary laid down in existing treaties and conventions between the United States and Great Britain terminates, the line of boundary between the territories of the United States and those of her Britannic Majesty shall be continued westward along the said forty-ninth parallel of north latitude to the middle of the channel which separates the continent from Vancouver's Island, and thence, southerly, through the middle of the said channel and Fuca's Straits to the Pacific Ocean."

It also provided that the possessory rights of the Hudson Bay Company and all British subjects already in occupancy of land within said territory shall be respected. Previous to this treaty a provisional government had been established in Oregon, in 1841, by emigrants from the United States, and a constitution was adopted, July 5th, 1843, which was recognized.

An Act to establish the territorial government of Oregon, was passed by Congress, August 14th, 1848, as follows:

"That from and after the passage of this Act, all that part of the territory of the United States which lies west of the summit of the Rocky Mountains, north of the forty-second degree of north latitude, known as the Territory of Oregon, shall be organized into and constitute a temporary government by the name of the Territory of Oregon."

General Joseph Lane, the first territorial governor, arrived, and by proclamation, put the territorial government into operation, March 30, 1849.

The Act creating Washington Territory became a law March 2d, 1853, defining the boundaries as follows:

"That from and after the passage of this Act, all that portion of Oregon Territory lying and being south of the forty-ninth degree of north latitude, and north of the middle of the main channel of the Columbia River, from its mouth to where the forty-sixth degree of north latitude crosses said river, near Fort Walla Walla, thence with said forty-sixth degree of latitude to the summit of the Rocky Mountains, be organized into and constitute a temporary government by the name of the Territory of Washington."

No enabling Act for the State of Oregon was passed by Congress.

The constitution of Oregon, adopted at Salem, September 18th, 1857, ratified November 9th, in Article XVI., defined the boundaries as follows:

"Beginning one marine league at sea due west from the point where the forty-second parallel of north latitude intersects the same; thence northerly at the same distance from the line of the coast, lying west and opposite the state, including all islands within the jurisdiction of the United States, to a point due west and opposite the middle of the north ship channel of the Columbia River; thence easterly to and up the middle channel of said river, and where it is divided by islands, up the middle of the widest channel thereof, and in like manner up the middle of the main channel of Snake River to the mouth of the Owyhee River; thence due south to the parallel of latitude forty-two degrees north, thence west along said parallel to the place of beginning. (Encroaching on the Territory of Washington to the extent of the section of country south of the Columbia River and north of forty-sixth degree of north latitude."

The Congress of the United States was authorized in admitting the state to make northern boundary conform to the Act creating the Territory of Washington.

February 14th, 1859, Congress passed an Act admitting Oregon into the Union, making its boundary conform to that of Washington Territory. The State of Oregon shall be bounded as follows, to wit:—

"Beginning one marine league at sea due west from the point where the forty-second parallel of north latitude intersects the same; thence northerly at the same distance from the line of the coast, lying west and opposite the state, including all islands within the jurisdiction of the United States, to a point due west and opposite the middle of the north ship channel of the Columbia River; thence easterly to and up the middle channel of said river, and where it is divided by islands, up the middle of the widest channel thereof, to a point near Fort Walla Walla, where the forty-sixth parallel of north latitude crosses said river; thence east on said parallel to the middle of the main channel of the Shoshones or Snake River; thence up the middle of the main channel of said river to the mouth of the Owyhee River; thence due south to the parallel of latitude forty-two degrees north; thence west along said parallel to the place of beginning."

The same Act of February 14th, 1859, in section 5, provided as follows:—

"That until Congress shall otherwise direct, the residue of the Territory of Oregon shall be, and is hereby, incorporated into and made a part of the Territory of Washington."

On May 26th, 1864, Congress passed the following:—

AN ACT TO PROVIDE A TEMPORARY GOVERNMENT FOR THE TERRITORY OF MONTANA.

"That all that part of the territory of the United States included within the limits, to wit: Commencing at a point formed by the intersection of the twenty-seventh degree of longitude west from Washington with the forty-fifth degree of north latitude; thence due west on said forty-fifth degree of latitude to a point formed by its intersection with the thirty-fourth degree of longitude west from Washington; thence due south along said thirty-fourth degree of longitude to its intersection with the forty-fourth degree and thirty minutes of north latitude; thence due west along said forty-fourth degree and thirty minutes of north latitude to a point formed by its intersection with the crest of the Rocky Mountains; thence following the crest of the Rocky Mountains northward till its intersection with the Bitter Root Mountains; thence northward along the crest of said Bitter Root Mountains to its intersection with the thirty-ninth degree of longitude west from Washington; thence along said thirty-ninth degree of longitude northward to the boundary line of the British Possessions; thence eastward along said boundary line to the twenty-seventh degree of longitude west of Washington; thence southward along said twenty-seventh degree of longitude to the place of beginning, be, and the same is hereby, created into a temporary government by the name of the Territory of Montana."

It also provided that the Legislative Assembly was to consist of a Council and House of Representatives. Council shall consist of seven members, House of Representatives shall, at its first session, consist of thirteen members; House may be increased to twenty-six members, and Council to thirteen members.
The first session was to meet at time and place designated by the Governor and so convened at Bannack, December 12th, 1864, and adjourned February 9th, 1865.

On February 17th, 1873, Congress passed an Act to readjust the western boundary of Dakota Territory which provided:

"That all that portion of Dakota Territory lying west of the one hundred and eleventh meridian of longitude which, by an erroneous definition of the boundaries of said territory by a former Act of Congress, remains detached and distant from Dakota proper some two hundred miles, be, and the same is hereby, attached to the adjoining Territory of Montana."

On February 22d, 1889, Congress passed an enabling Act entitled: An Act to provide for the division of Dakota into two states and to enable the people of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Washington to form constitutions and state governments and to be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original states, and to make donations of public lands to such states.

"Enacted: That the inhabitants of all that part of the area of the United States now constituting the territories of Dakota, Montana, and Washington, as at present described, may become the states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Washington, respectively, as hereinafter provided."

Under its provision a Constitutional Convention of seventy-five members was convened at Helena, the capital, July 4th and on August 17th adopted a Constitution, which on October 1st was ratified by the people and on November 8th, 1889, the following proclamation of the President was issued declaring Montana one of the States of the Union.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS the Congress of the United States did by an act, approved on the twenty-second day of February, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, provide that the inhabitants of the Territory of Montana, might, upon the conditions prescribed in said Act, become the State of Montana;

AND WHEREAS, it was provided by said act that delegates elected as therein provided, to a Constitutional convention in the Territory of Montana, should meet at the seat of government of said Territory; and that after they had met and organized they should declare on behalf of the people of Montana that they adopt the Constitution of the United States; whereupon the said convention should be authorized to form a State Government for the proposed State of Montana;

AND WHEREAS, it was provided by said act that the Constitution so adopted should be republican in form and make no distinction in civil or political rights on account of race or color, except as to Indians not taxed, and not be repugnant to the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence; and that the Convention should, by an ordinance irrevocable without the consent of the United States and the people of said state, make certain provisions prescribed in said act;

AND WHEREAS, it was provided by said act that the Constitution thus formed for the people of Montana should, by an ordinance of the Convention forming the same, be submitted to the people of Montana at an election to be held therein on the first Tuesday in October, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, for ratification or rejection by the qualified voters of said proposed State; and that the returns of said election should be made to the Secretary of said Territory, who, with the Governor and Chief Justice thereof, or any two of them, should canvass the same; and if a majority of the legal votes cast should be for the Constitution, the Governor should certify the result to the President of the United States, together with a statement of the votes cast thereon, and upon separate articles or propositions and a copy of said Constitution, articles, propositions, and ordinances;

And Whereas, it has been certified to me by the Governor of said Territory that within the time prescribed by said act of Congress, a Constitution for the proposed State of Montana has been adopted and that the same, together with two ordinances connected therewith, has been ratified by a majority of the qualified voters of said proposed State in accordance with the conditions prescribed in said act;

And Whereas, a duly authenticated copy of said Constitution and ordinances, as required by said act, has been received by me;

Now, Therefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States of America, do, in accordance with the provisions of the act of Congress aforesaid, declare and proclaim the fact that the conditions imposed by Congress on the State of Montana to entitle that State to admission to the Union, have been ratified and accepted, and that the admission of the said State into the Union is now complete.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this eighth (8th) day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and fourteenth.

BENJ. HARRISON.

By the President:

JAMES G. BLAINE, Secretary of State.
